Dear David Isaac CBE,

I am writing on behalf of the Muslim Council of Britain – the largest umbrella body of Muslim organisations in the UK – to formally request the Equalities and Human Rights Commission to investigate whether the Conservative Party has breached its obligations under the Equality Act.

Given the Act makes it unlawful for the Party to discriminate against its members, prospective members or its guests, we believe there is sufficient evidence to suggest that there is a prima facie case to answer of systemic unlawful acts by the Party.

The main pillars of the case proposed are as follows:

1. Islamophobia amongst Members of Parliament: When Members of Parliament engaged in Islamophobia or a campaign for Mayor of London engaged in Islamophobia, no action was taken, demonstrating a tolerance for Islamophobia at the highest levels of the Party;

2. Atmosphere of Hostility Against Muslim Conservative Party Members: Islamophobia has also been tolerated towards Muslim members of the Party, indicating an atmosphere of hostility towards Muslims in the Party;

3. Scale of Islamophobia in the Party: The problem of Islamophobia runs deep into the Party with a total of c.150 representatives of the Party and members of the Party who have engaged in Islamophobia;

4. Failure of Complaints Process: Those in charge of the process of handling complaints within the Party (Chair, Deputy Chair) have demonstrated a callous attitude to complaints, misleading members and the public with limited (if any) transparency; and

5. Denial of Islamophobia: The Party and its representatives have denied there is even a major problem of Islamophobia in the Party.

Any one of these charges should be sufficient to indicate a serious problem. Taken together, this has led to there being a situation where members of the Party and prospective members from a Muslim background specifically, have felt and publicly stated that there is an institutional problem of Islamophobia, where racism against Muslims is not dealt with other than where there is a media spotlight on the issue.

We believe that the evidence we have collated – attached in an Appendix to this letter – is sufficient to support the case outlined above. We also recognise that the EHRC is able to request further evidence given the lack of transparency within the Party and request the relevant individuals within the Conservative Campaign Headquarters (CCHQ) to add further examples of potential breaches of the Equality Act.

Despite the escalation in the number of cases of Islamophobia, there appears to have been no change in the approach taken. The Party has thus far failed to sufficiently engage with members of the Party who have raised these concerns privately and then publicly (from Baroness Warsi and Lord Sheikh to the Conservative Muslim Forum), or Muslim community groups such as the Muslim Council of Britain.

Given this lack of willingness to take any opportunity to tackle this problem once and for all, we are hoping that the EHRC will be able to launch a formal investigation into this presumed breach of the Equality Act, and identify ways to ensure to rectify this serious issue within the governing Party of this country.

If there is any further information that may support your work, please do not hesitate to get in touch.

Look forward to hearing from you

Yours

Harun Khan, Secretary General

Muslim Council of Britain
Appendix

This appendix provides the prima facie evidence outlined in the letter in each of the four areas of the case proposed. Given the unwillingness of the Conservative Party to engage constructively in these discussions, the evidence provided is of two types:

- Views of those with direct and first-hand knowledge about the issue within the Conservative Party e.g. those with current / former positions in the Party, representatives of the Party, members of the Party who have been at specific events
- Public information about incidents that have taken place within the Party or statements made by Party representatives or members

The evidence provided is collated in each of the 6 sections highlighted in the letter:

1. Islamophobia amongst Members of Parliament: When Members of Parliament engaged in Islamophobia or a campaign for Mayor of London engaged in Islamophobia, no action was taken, demonstrating a tolerance for Islamophobia at the highest levels of the Party;
2. Atmosphere of Hostility Against Muslim Conservative Party Members: Where Islamophobia has also been tolerated towards Muslim members of the Party, indicating an atmosphere of hostility towards Muslims in the Party;
3. Scale of Islamophobia in the Party: The problem of Islamophobia runs deep into the Party with a large number of representatives of the Party and members of the Party who have engaged in Islamophobia;
4. Failure of Complaints Process: Those in charge of the process of handling complaints within the Party (Chair, Deputy Chair) have demonstrated a callous attitude to complaints, misleading members and the public with limited (if any) transparency; and
5. Denial of Islamophobia: The Party and its representatives have denied there is even a major problem of Islamophobia in the Party
1. Islamophobia amongst Members of Parliament

This section of the appendix will provide examples of the Islamophobia at the very top of the Party, even used as an election tactic, which demonstrates a tolerance for Islamophobia. There are two sections to this part of the Appendix:

A) Campaign for Mayor of London

B) Comments and behaviour of other Members of Parliament

A) Campaign for Mayor of London

The campaign for the Mayor of London against Sadiq Khan by Zac Goldsmith, has been widely described as worse than “dog whistle” racism targeting Muslims, including by Andrew Boff, the Conservative group leader on the Greater London assembly.¹

Mohammed Amin, chair of the Conservative Muslim Forum, stated that “Zac began to paint Khan as a closet extremist…. Every Muslim member of the Conservative Party who has discussed the campaign with me has understood the messages in this way, as have many, probably most, non-Muslim commentators. I concluded that Zac had abandoned any attempt to appeal to Muslim voters”.²

During this campaign, there appeared to be a co-ordinated strategy to employ the Islamophobic tropes that Muslims are extremists or linked to extremists, all the way to the top of the Party:

- Prime Minister Theresa May, home secretary at the time, declared Khan unsafe to run London because of an alleged history of defending extremists;³
- Former Prime Minister David Cameron falsely accused an Imam associated with Khan of supporting Islamic State. The claim was later retracted;⁴
- Former Defence Secretary, Michael Fallon, similarly falsely accused the same Imam. Fallon had to pay damages.⁵

Zac Goldsmith has since refused to apologise and has doubled down on his position throughout the Mayoral Campaign. No action has been taken by the Party in any of these cases.

B) Members of Parliament

Further to the above, there are a number of serious examples of Islamophobia within the Party at the highest levels, where no action has been taken. Given these Members of Parliament are not satirists or ordinary members of the public in a private setting but representatives of a diverse nation, they have the responsibility to set the tone for the UK.

Attacks on Islam or Muslims create an atmosphere of hostility towards the Muslim members of the Party, and a number of examples are set out below:

1. Boris Johnson:
   - He has made a number of statements about Islam e.g. he wrote that “Islam is the problem”, defended Islamophobia as a “natural reaction”.
   - He made “dehumanising” comments about Muslim women wearing the niqab referring to them as “letter boxes” and “bank robbers”, pandering to the far right, which had real-world consequences for Muslim women (Muslim women mocked as letterboxes in a range of different situations, pensioners echo niqab comments at doctor's surgery, Muslim women wearing niqab facing more abuse generally). These were comments that the EHRC called “inflammatory and divisive” and risked “viliying Muslim women” — he has refused to apologise (see later section on the process that cleared him)
   - He has been secretly meeting with Steve Bannon, who as the former executive Chairman of Breitbart – described as “far-right” – provided a platform for falsified information about Muslims; and as the former Chief Strategist and Senior Counselor for President Donald Trump, had a key role in writing the Executive Order banning immigration from seven Muslim-majority countries that many have called a “Muslim Ban”.

2. Bob Blackman:
   - Shared an anti-Muslim post by Tommy Robinson, and then re-tweeted accounts defending him even though they had a history of hurling abuse at Muslims.
   - Hosted an anti-Muslim extremist (Tapan Ghosh) in Parliament – a man who said the UN should try & ”control the Muslim birth rate world over”, has propagated fake anti-Muslim stories like “One million white English children may have been the victims of Muslim rape gangs” and that “Islam has massacred over 669+ million non-Muslims since 622AD” and who appears to be a friend of Tommy Robinson. He later re-tweeted comments asking why there was such a fuss over this individual.
   - Shared a story titled “Muslim Somali sex gang say raping white British children ‘part of their culture’” from the anti-Muslim website Hardcore News USA on his Facebook.
   - Shared a fake story about a Hindu woman being stabbed to death by her Muslim driver for rejecting marriage proposal from an anti-Muslim website, which has been repeatedly accused of publishing false stories designed to cause community tensions between Hindus and Muslims.
   - Was a member of several far-right and Islamophobic Facebook groups – he was a member of "Britain for the British", "For Britain Political Party" and "Pendragons Fight Back". Details of the vile Islamophobia can be found on the Vice website.

It is worth noting that the Prime Minister campaigned with Bob Blackman after many of these incidents.21

3. Nadine Dorries:
   - Shared a tweet from Tommy Robinson22
   - Shared a false story about Muslims claiming benefits for several wives from an Anne-Marie Waters supporter who considers Tommy Robinson to be a “truth teller”23
   - When Sadiq Khan talked about hate crime, Nadine Dorries had the audacity to ask him about grooming gangs, playing to far-right tropes about Muslims (given the specific and real issue of grooming gangs have been most prevalent in other areas of the UK where Sadiq Khan is not Mayor)24
   - Stated that she was disappointed that Boris’ de-humanising comments about Muslim women who wear the burqa being “bank robbers” and “letterboxes”, “didn’t go further”25 and separately that Muslim women choose clothing to “hide...her bruises”, accusing (without evidence) the Muslims in the families (?) of those wearing a niqab, of domestic violence.26 Further, she linked FGM (without any evidence) to Muslim women wearing a burqa27
   - Despite voting against same-sex marriage, she weaponised gay rights (specifically “gay marriage”) as a means of attacking Muslim women wearing a burqa who she claimed were “forced to cover up”28
   - Said a Muslim woman should “appreciate” everything Britain had given her29

4. Ben Bradley vociferously defended a Conservative Councillor who shared Islamophobic posts, lied to a reporter about it and the same Councillor was later caught out.30

5. Damian Green responded to a deeply Islamophobic manifesto about “halting Muslim birth-rates” sent to him, without condemning the tropes but instead thanked them and responded as if they had made valid points.31

6. Andrew Rosindell was found to be a member of a Facebook group called Conservative Debating Forum - thought to be the second largest pro-Tory group on Facebook, which was riddled with Islamophobia. It carries several posts a day regarding Muslims or Islam, accompanied by comments such as “send them back” and “we should ban Islam”. Others suggested that Islam represents an “threat to our country” to Britain and that only someone with a “mental illness” would convert to the religion. One member simply stated, “I am Islamophobic”. He was later also found to be a member of a group supporting the far-right leader Tommy Robinson. The Times noted that you can’t be accused of accepting an invitation...or requesting to join.

7. Andrea Leadsom responded to a question by Naz Shah MP about the definition of Islamophobia by saying that it should be discussed “with foreign ministers”. As the New Statesman says: “Apparently, to the Leader of the House of Commons, Muslim equals foreign.”32

8. Phillip Hollobone said the burqa was “the religious equivalent of going around with a paper bag over your head with two holes for the eyes”33

9. Philip Davies called for the abolishment of Sharia councils but made no such request about similar Beth Din courts, indicating a clear differentiated treatment for Muslims.34
10. David Davies claimed that Islamic headwear is “an excuse for sexual violence against women”35

11. Former Prime Minister David Cameron alleged that a school (Islamic Shakhshiyah Foundation) was linked to Islamic extremism – a view dismissed by Haringey Council who found no evidence of “inappropriate influence”36 In one of his many speeches in the past 6 years about Muslims and extremism37, he most famously last year proposed that Muslim women (specifically) should learn English to help tackle extremism38. Even within the government’s message in 2015 to Muslim communities on the celebration of Eid, he felt compelled to refer to the attacks by Daesh on Kobane and Tunisia.39

12. Mike Fabricant shared an Islamophobic picture of Sadiq Khan as a pig, claiming that he had not seen the picture of Sadiq Khan (although it is unclear what the political point of the photo without Sadiq Khan).40 He believed that Jewish schools face a threat from Muslim schools (without evidence)41 and falsely claimed that 100 anti-Jewish attacks were committed by “intolerant Muslims” when no such claim was made in the article he cited.42

13. Michael Gove was accused of having “extreme” views about Muslims by the former Co-Chair of the Party Baroness Sayeeda Warsi.43

14. Other MPs were also found to be part of the Conservative Debating Forum mentioned above including Jacob Rees-Mogg, Ben Bradley, Julian Sturdy, Stuart Andrew, Glyn Davies, James Duddridge, Vicky Ford, George Freeman and Kevin Hollinrake.44 Some have claimed that they were without their knowledge.

Not all of these should be considered of the same seriousness, but the fact that not a single MP on this list has faced any suspension or action (other than Boris Johnson where a secret inquiry cleared him – see later section), demonstrates a woeful tolerance of Islamophobia in the Party.
2. Atmosphere of Hostility Against Muslim Conservative Party Members

The way to best understand whether Islamophobia is tolerated in the Party and if there is an atmosphere of hostility against Muslims in the Party, is by looking to the most senior Muslims outside of Government, but within the Conservative Party – who are free to discuss their views on the issue:

- The former co-chair of the Party Baroness Warsi has a unique insight into the workings of the Party. In 2016, she discussed how there was a “simmering underbelly of Islamophobia” in the Party and has since explained how she believes there is “institutional” Islamophobia in the Party.

- The founder of the Conservative Muslim Forum and longstanding senior Muslim peer Lord Sheikh has stated how the concerns of Islamophobia are “no surprise to me and should not come as a surprise to the party either” as he urged the Party to launch an inquiry into Islamophobia - he has since been hounded by the Party, receiving dozens of “vile” Islamophobic emails together with calls for him to be expelled from the Party.

- The current Chair of the Conservative Muslim Forum and longstanding activist Mohammed Amin has accused the Party of failing to root out Islamophobia because they are scared of damaging their own political power, noting that they were instead hoping the issue “will magically go away”.

- Chair of the Youth Wing of the Conservative Muslim Forum and long-term activist Hashim Bhatti discussed the “feeling that Muslims are not being listened to when they express concerns about the bigotry they face” and joined the call for an inquiry into Islamophobia in the Party.

It is unclear who better within the Party could speak out to highlight the concerns they have seen. However, if these voices are insufficient, their views are supported by a series of specific examples of behaviour targeting Muslims within the Conservative Party:

- Baroness Warsi was labelled a “” in Conservative Party meetings.
- Conservative Party Candidate Shazia Awan left the Party because it has “a notion that Islam is not compatible with British values” explaining a worrying incident a party event.
- A Muslim member has stated how he was asked to door-knock certain houses while campaigning because the residents were not white.
- At the Hammersmith association annual dinner 2016, the 5 ethnic minorities that attended were put on the same table at the farthest end of the hall (other than the girlfriend of one of the exec).
- A Muslim former Deputy Chair of a local Party states he was not included on mailing lists for campaigning, was told his application for wards had gone missing and was only given three days’ notice for a selection event for Holland Park ward prompted after he asked why he had heard nothing for three months.

Compiled by the Muslim Council of Britain 28 May 2019
The local party leader had said that one member looked “too Muslim” and “wouldn’t be accepted”\textsuperscript{57}.

There were insinuations made by Conservative Party members that some Muslim members were not British\textsuperscript{58}.

One Muslim Party member explains how he was told that good Muslims only being of one sect\textsuperscript{59}.

Former Tory candidate Kishan Devani quit the party due to “uncomfortable lurch to the right which caused Islamophobia scandal”\textsuperscript{60}.

One Muslim member telling how a councillor had told him he was “not welcome” in the party and the same Muslim member later being told during a candidate’s interview that “naturally in your core belief women are not allowed to work”\textsuperscript{61}.

These incidents are some of the comments from Muslims within the Party demonstrated a culture of Islamophobia faced by Muslims. This is supplemented by the Islamophobia from those who are not Muslim as outlined in the later parts of the Appendix.

Muslim communities across the UK have raised concerns and called for an inquiry into Islamophobia in the Conservative Party, including:

- The Muslim Council of Britain, the largest umbrella body of Muslim organisations in the UK, which the majority of Muslims believe is doing a “good job” in representing their views\textsuperscript{62}.
- Councils of mosques across the country representing over hundreds of mosques and Muslim institutions\textsuperscript{63}.
- The largest Muslim student union FOSIS representing 120 Islamic societies, and the Union of Jewish Students (UJS)
- Two out of the four Muslim Conservative peers Baroness Warsi and Lord Sheikh
- Muslim organisations including the Muslim Women’s Network and Jewish organisations such as the Jewish Council for Racial Equality
- The affiliated Muslim group, the Conservative Muslim Forum

These calls have been ignored – we can only imagine how Muslims within the Party would feel treated when their representative bodies and communities are being ignored.

Furthermore, for any Muslim member of the Conservative Party to be involved in the Party, they would be in one of the various social media groups. Some of the most well known have been full of Islamophobia:

- Conservative Home: the most high profile Conservative Party grassroots activist forum was littered with Islamophobia e.g. comments talking of the need to discuss “how to eradicate the cancer” of “Islam and Middle Eastern cultures”. One commenter said Muslims should be "explaining and justifying what their faith has to offer civilised society", while another seemed to threaten Muslims.\textsuperscript{64}

- Conservative Debating Forum: the second largest pro-Conservative Facebook (closed) group was full of regular Islamophobic abuse (a 42-page dossier has been collected). Comments include demands to “expel the London mayor” and “send back” immigrants, while another post states that “Islam should be banned”. 10 Conservative MPs were found to be members as well as “dozens of Tory councillors” and other senior Conservatives. Some have since distanced themselves from the group.65

- Boris Johnson’s official Facebook page: the official Facebook page hosted hundreds of Islamophobic messages. Among the remarks on the former foreign secretary’s official Facebook page are calls for “no Muslims in government, police or army”; one post reads: “That’s crazy to trust them. They are just waiting for the Jihad signal to turn on us. #Islamophobicandproud.”; another tells the Conservative MP for Uxbridge and South Ruislip: “Come on Boris, you had the bottle to start getting rid of these bloody muslims, just like Enoch [Powell] wanted to rid us of all yer bloody cns!”66

- Jacob Rees-Mogg Supporters group on Facebook: this group with 23,000 members, had a large number of Islamophobic comments. One comment mentioned entering a mosque with a rifle while another called to “stop the Islamification of Britain”.67 Muslims whose murder have been called for, on this group include Sajid Javid, Sadiq Khan, Naz Shah and Magid.68

- True Blue Tories: Rebecca D’Amato, administrator of the True Blue Tories group, appeared to suggest that Christchurch was a hoax, calling it “a stitch up”. Martin Oddy, a Conservative supporter who has helped organise events for Brexiteer MP Andrea Jenkyns, replied with the sick joke “shoe sale in New Zealand”.69

For members who are Muslim, this adds to the atmosphere of hostility they face in the Party as such groups are tolerated.

Finally, the very existence of Islamophobia as a problem in the Party has been denied by its representatives (see later section of the Appendix).

Together, these explain how the Party has fostered and tolerated an atmosphere of Islamophobia within the Party.
3. Scale of Islamophobia in the Party

The problem of Islamophobia runs deep into the Party with a large number of representatives of the Party and members of the Party who have engaged in Islamophobia. This section provides examples of serious issues of Islamophobia and hate about Islam and/or Muslims by Conservative councillors, candidates and representatives, for whom it is unacceptable to share hate about Muslims or Islam.

Given the Party refuses to be transparent in its processes, these are therefore only a subset of the likely much larger group of councillors, candidates and representatives who have been involved in such anti-Muslim or anti-Islam activity:

1. Mike Payne shared an article which called Muslims ‘parasites’ who ‘live off the state and breed like rabbits’ amongst a number of Islamophobic comments.
2. Alexander van Terheyden called Islam a ‘violent political ideology’ comparable to fascism and communism.
3. Darren Harrison (Conservative council candidate for Watford Borough Council’s Tudor Ward) was alleged to have links to Generation Identity, an anti-Islam organisation with strong links to far-right groups across Europe.
4. Phillipa Auton (prospective Conservative candidate for Hounslow council’s Isleworth ward) retweeted a tweet from Tommy Robinson and separately tweeted ‘Revoke Muslim immigration, repatriate and secure European borders.’ as a means of keeping Europe safe.
5. Peter Lucey (former Conservative Mayor of Wokingham) liked a page by right-wing extremist Tommy Robinson and Geert Wilders, the anti-Muslim Dutch politician, and made a number of posts about Islam and the English Defence League.
6. Nick Sundin (prospective Tory Councillor in Newcastle) tweeted the Prophet Mohammed was a ‘c’ paedophile’ and that Allah was a “c**”.
7. Karen Sunderland (candidate for Lewisham Council) called Islam ‘the new Nazism’ and attacked women who wear the headscarf stating “Such a lame attempt you made to justify hijabs. Self indulgent to think anyone would give a toot that you showed your hair”.
8. David Boston (Conservative candidate for Enfield Council’s Turkey Street ward) posted a picture of bacon hanging on a door handle as a way to ‘protect your house from terrorism’.
9. Stephen Goldsack had formerly been the “Scottish security adviser” for the BNP in 2001, which led to the Muslim Council of Scotland accusing the Conservative Party of a “deep problem” of racism and Islamophobia.
10. Ray Bray (Kirkburton Parish Council’s Conservative member for Shelley) said Labour were to blame for “Muzzle rapists” amongst a number of offensive and Islamophobic tweets and retweets.
11. Stephen Ardley (former Mayor of Lowesoft) allegedly said it was “unbelievable” that a Muslim had been elected and went on to describe those who voted for him as “blind”.
12. Ian Hibberd (Southampton) who asked a fellow councillor “Why are you dressed like a Muslim or anti-Muslim”.
13. Linda Freedman (Barnet) who expressed support for the detention of Muslims.

although he has since “clarified” that he meant those who had committed crimes in this country, which remains problematic.

27. Paul Messenger (Conservative county councillor representing Ramsgate) admitted social media posts were written by him including Posts that were highlighted include one that says: “Let’s not fool ourselves here; The Muslim Communities living in Britain would like to see the whole country Muslim. Whether this is achieved by violent or stealth – they would prefer this – it’s natural and you could argue within their rights to do this... given that MI5 have to commit considerable resources into the protection and prevention of ‘home grown’ Islamic threat far more than when the IRA were doing their worst to us, then I believe the peaceful British Islamic Society should pay for this extra cost.”

28. Ron McKail (Aberdeenshire councillor and deputy provost) shared an image comparing Muslim women to patio umbrellas.

29. Mike Kusneraitis (Englefield Green ward councillor) posted a number of images relating to Muslims on a private Egham residents’ group on Facebook including a dog wearing a towel.

31. Chris Joannides shared a photo on Facebook comparing Muslim children wearing burkas to binbags on Facebook.

32. Bob Frost (Councillor in North Deal) has a history of racist posts about Muslims including memes and statements about Muslims being anti-Semitic, Muslims committing voter fraud, claiming that Sadiq Khan’s background is responsible for grooming, that Islam is not a religion of peace because of a terror attack etc.

33. Andrew Boles (leader of Swale Borough Council in Kent) shared a Twitter post defending Tommy Robinson.

34. David Pulman (a town council election candidate in Hampshire) wrote that Islamophobia is “not surprising” in a Facebook rant about Muslims. He said: “I guess people will stop being afraid of Islam ... when the Islamic radicals stop beheading Christians, throwing homosexuals to their deaths from high buildings, beating women for disobeying their husbands, stoning to death the wife of a man who has committed adultery and generally trying to kill all non-Muslims and take over Christian countries? Islamophobia is perhaps not surprising?”

35. Robin Poley (candidate in the Charnwood borough and Shepshed town council elections for Shepshed East in Leicestershire), has endorsed Facebook posts suggesting Sajid Javid was appointed home secretary to secure “the ethnic vote” and criticising Prince Harry for having a relationship with “a divorcee of mixed race”.

36. David Abbott (deputy mayor of Houghton Regis) said: “Moslems are commanded to do everything in their power, including killing, to rid the world of every person who does not follow Islam.” In another exchange he was told that Muslims “hate” being called “Mohammedans”. Mr Abbott replied: “I’ll have to remember that” before using the term in other posts himself, including one in which he said that the religion had a “breed for Islam” philosophy.

37. Charalampos Kagouras (local election candidate who has repeatedly stood in north Manchester e.g. for Charlestown and Cheetham and Newton Heath) wrote: “F Muslims and their mosques...confiscate their British passports” and “How about teach the f [sic]

Muslims how to get the f out of Europe before getting kicked out” amongst other Islamophobic posts.

38. Shaun Bailey (candidate for Mayor of London) wrote in 2005 that accommodating Muslim culture “robs Britain of its community” which could lead the country into a “crime-riddled cesspool” and shared a tweet referring to Sadiq Khan as “mad mullah Khan of Londonistan”.

39. Laurel Ellis (council candidate for the Gurnos ward on Merthyr Tydfil) shared Facebook pages including Facebook pages including one post that suggested Britain was tolerant “until... Muslims marched”. Another, captioned “Sharia May”, includes a photoshopped image of May wearing Muslim religious dress. In a Twitter post Ellis said: “Theresa May is a front-runner really? A leader that supports Islam and is happy to have Sharia Law in our country?”

40. David Bishop (candidate in Brentwood South in Essex) posted comments on Twitter including: “It’s good to be anti-Islam” and “Islam ‘the religion of peace’ & rape”.

41. Mick Murphy (Hucknall North in Ashfield) shared an image showing a woman and child in burqas flanked by black rubbish bags. The caption read: “I saw her standing there and I told her she had three beautiful children. She didn’t have to get all pissed off and threaten me. It was an honest mistake” and also shared an image on Facebook with a watermark for Britain First’s website.

42. Evan Woolcock (council candidate running for the Portishead West ward in Somerset) labelled Islam a “stone age death cult” in one post, and wrote “submit or resist, that’s the only choices Islam presents.”

43. Ivan Lyons (set to contest Westbourne ward) joked about telling a suicidal Muslim man to “stay on the line” when calling the Samaritans from a railway track. Another talked about being frightened of women wearing Burkas and “Muslims, angry bearded types” while on a trip to Afghanistan – with the payoff being that this “scary hell hole” was actually Hounslow.

44. Carola Godman Irvine (chair and president of the Conservative Association in the Lewes constituency), claimed Islamic extremists were raping British women to create “Muslim babies” and that also said the Manchester arena bombing may have been the “wake-up call that was needed” to spur the police into “radical monitoring” of Muslims.

45. Andrew Bowles (leader of Swale Borough Council) shared a post hailing Tommy Robinson a ‘patriot’.

From the above list, given the Party’s unwillingness to be transparent in its processes, it is unclear what has happened to each of these councillors, whether they have been re-admitted into the Party and if so, whether there was any apology or training prior to re-admission.

There are also a large number of moderators of conservative party groups or members of the Conservative Party who have been identified as having shared Islamophobic content.

Examples of these are listed below:

1. Tony Fell shared a video with the subtitle, “why Muslims kill for Islam,” and referred to the “osmosis” of Islamic influence on British politics. Elsewhere he stated that “the biggest

A man who wrote last week that he had joined the Tories to get a Brexiteer elected as prime minister said of Sajid Javid: “Britain is not ready for a Muslim PM, that would be taking the absolute piss out of the country”. He also wrote of Sadiq Khan: “This man does not represent the United Kingdom, he is only the Mayor of Londonistan… Theresa May needs to get a grip of this Muslim Brotherhood stooge.”

82. One woman who wrote two days ago that she was staying as a Tory member “so that we can elect the right leader” wrote that Javid “will protect his own. He was sworn in on the Koran”.

83. Another woman, who said, “I’m ready to cancel my membership only holding onto it in case I could use it against them”, wrote that “Britain has an Islamic problem”.

84. One man, who wrote on Facebook last week, “I intend to stay a member because I hope to be able to influence the party and help get it to move in the right direction”, accused the government and the EU of “facilitating Hijrah”, which he called “Muslim conquest by emigration”. He also wrote: “We have serious problems with young Muslim men. Too many of them are running wild. They think they have a direct line to Allah.”

85. Another woman who said she was a Tory member shared a post calling Islam a “death cult” and Mohammed a “paedophile”.

86. A man who wrote last week that he has “retained my membership so I could have my say in who will be the next PM” claimed May is “trying to give our country to the muslems [sic] next it will be sarah law [sic] and finally we all have to convert to islam time to stand up and fight like our forefathers who fought 2 wars to keep this country british”.

87. One man who last week urged fellow members to “Stay til we choose the next leader” wrote: “Why do the press continue to defend Muslims. Muslims are doing a lll the bad things in the world. And they wonder why people are suspicious about them”.

88. A woman who says she is a Tory member wrote: “When I look around London, there's no sound of the English language it's completely Asian, what have you done to make me feel like a foreigner in my own country, you have gone ahead and decided with Merkel and Junker to flood Britain with Muslims from around the world.”

89. Another woman who is a Tory member said of Conservative peer Lord Sheikh: “I’m bloody fed up of people coming to our country like he did because Amin booted him and others out of Uganda, and then after everything we have given to them, they kick us in the backside and start telling us what we should and should not say or do”.

90. One man who says he is a Conservative member wrote: “Muslims, it’s either AK47s, power in liberal groups or politics… they are like knot-weed in your lawn.”

91. A male Tory member shared a post claiming “Islam wants our entire culture” and said the government has to “start getting tough” on Muslims.

92. A woman who last week wrote that she is a Tory member called Islam a “weird cult and not a religion” and claimed that under sharia law “they can have sex with white children”. She claimed “evil people are stopping white people rightly expositing that”.

93. Several other Conservative members posted about a “Muslim invasion” and the so-called white genocide conspiracy theory. 209

Together with the councillors and representatives in the list above, this forms a selection of c. 150 cases to demonstrate the scale of the issue – ITV News has reported over 100 (other?) cases210 and BuzzFeed has claimed that “it is understood that more than 50 Tory members have now been suspended over anti-Muslim posts, though the party refuses to say which members it has suspended, or how many.”211

It is therefore also not clear what has happened to all the aforementioned list of members, if they have been suspended and/or re-admitted, and if so, whether they underwent any training or gave an apology to local Muslim communities. Further discussion on this, is in section 4 of the Appendix.

Although perhaps outside the scope of this section, voters for the Conservative Party have troubling views,212 which might help explain why Islamophobia appears so embedded in the Party:

- 47% of Conservative Party voters believe in at least one conspiracy theory about Muslims e.g. there are no-go areas where sharia law dominates & non-Muslims cannot enter
- 49% of Conservative Party voters see Islam as a threat to the British way of life
4. Failure of Complaints Process

The Party has claimed that it has dealt with any complaints swiftly and the Prime Minister claimed that the process was being handled well.213 However, this section aims to demonstrate that this is categorically not the case.

(Former) Party Vice Chair Ben Bradley not only did not deal with Islamophobia, he:
- Vociferously defended a Conservative Councillor who shared Islamophobic posts
- Lied to a reporter about it; and
- Attempted to cover up his dismissal of Islamophobia when the same Councillor was later caught out.214

Another senior Member of Parliament, albeit not part of the Party machinery, Damian Green responded to a deeply Islamophobic manifesto about “halting Muslim birth-rates” sent to him, without condemning the tropes but instead thanked them and responded as if they had made valid points.215

However, Brandon Lewis is the Chair of the Party, responsible for the complaints process. He claims there is a “zero tolerance approach to any form of discrimination” with “swift action” being taken216 given there is “no place” for Islamophobia in the Party. 217

The previous sections outline how Islamophobia appears to be quite prevalent within the Party but this section will focus on demonstrating his claims of swift action and integrity in the complaints process, are false.

Firstly, there appears to be a culture in the Party to try and stop complaints being made by Muslim members of the Party, including:
- One Muslim councillor stated he was worried about taking concerns to the Party because it would be “political suicide”218
- One Muslim Party member alleges he was told to “suck it up” and stop complaining after alleging discrimination219 - this was from the current Mayoral Candidate for London for the Party. This member has since cancelled his membership of the Conservative Party because he has “…repeatedly experienced discrimination, racism and at times been either bullied or emotionally blackmailed to keep silent about my experiences.”220
- A party member in the West Midlands says he made a complaint to the Conservatives’ regional headquarters, after an older councillor made a racist remark during a meeting. “It was totally brushed under the carpet; they didn’t want to know,” he says. “They just said ‘don’t worry about it, he’s an old man’. “221

THE MUSLIM COUNCIL OF BRITAIN

When those complaints are made, they appear to be ignored by Brandon Lewis and CCHQ:

- Ajay Jagota, chair of South Shields Conservative Association, resigned after complaints of Islamophobia he had experienced (he had been referred to as a Muslim in a pejorative way), were ignored by the Party (noting that he had spoken to Brandon Lewis directly as well as followed the formal process). He notes that “it seems like there was a deliberate attempt to sweep the complaint under the carpet in the hope that it would go away.” 222 After his resignation, despite Downing Street even getting involved to assure him of a response, Mr Jagota did not receive anything from CCHQ. 223
- Baroness Warsi has raised a number of complaints which have not been responded to swiftly, leading to her raising them in the public e.g. she stated “I raised this with @BrandonLewis privately and no response so here we go again...” 224
- Conservative party members in the Portsmouth South constituency in Hampshire have told the Guardian that Brandon Lewis has failed to acknowledge repeated requests to investigate a dozen alleged racist and Islamistophobic incidents. Registered letters of complaint sent to his office had been ignored, activists said. Massoud Esmaili, a Tory activist for 10 years who stood to become a city councillor, has written to Lewis outlining a number of allegations of racism but says he has yet to receive a reply. The ousted chair of the Portsmouth South constituency, Leo Ciccarone, said he first sent a letter to Lewis alleging racism in the party two years ago. Since then he had sent another two letters to the party’s chair by registered post, he said, as well as numerous emails. Ciccarone, 70, who is of Italian origin, said Lewis was misleading the public when he claimed that he investigated all allegations. “Our local party is riven with racism, from top to bottom. Lewis has blatantly ignored my pleas to investigate,” he said. 225
- Conservative officials warned Brandon Lewis MP and the Conservative Campaign Headquarters complaints team about anti-Muslim posts by party members in the “Jacob Rees-Mogg Supporters Group” on October 4 2018, but no action was taken until March 2019. 226
- Conservative Party councillors knew of Michael Franklin’s Islamistophobic comments for three years before they took any action against him 227
- After Conservative MP Helen Goodman complained about Colin Raine organising a demonstration outside her office with anti-Muslim far right groups, Raine was not expelled and the Party instead “waited for Colin Raine’s membership to expire” 228

In fact, it appears that there is strong evidence that Mr Lewis has misled the public on this issue. He claimed there were “none outstanding” when asked about complaints of Islamophobia in the Party in November 2018 by Hope Not Hate – but this has since been proven to be untrue, and Mr Jagota’s case above was one of many cases that appears to have been outstanding at the time. 229 This has led to Hope Not Hate to ask if he “misled” them in his response 230 and Mr Peter Oborne to state “he does not provide a convincing response to the deadly allegation that his statement on 7 November was misleading. There clearly were complaints outstanding last November - when Lewis said there weren’t... Lewis’s latest remarks form part of a pattern of denial in the upper reaches of the Conservative Party” 231

It is worth noting that no action has been taken against any Member of Parliament, despite the fact that the less powerful councillors or Conservative Party members have been suspended for actions far less serious than those done by the MPs listed in the section above. In fact, Zac Goldsmith was readmitted into the Party after stepping down\textsuperscript{232} — this re-admission and selection to be on the shortlist for Richmond Park was despite the racism in his Mayoral Campaign outlined in the earlier section.

The only exception is Boris Johnson, where an apparently independent investigation took place, clearing him (despite his actions being worse than other councillors e.g. Stephen Ardley said the former foreign secretary and mayor of London, Boris Johnson, should have been suspended for saying women in burqas look like “letter boxes” and “bank robbers” and that it was unfair that he was treated differently.)\textsuperscript{233} It is worth noting that this investigation was done behind closed doors, with the composition of the investigating panel not public, with no understanding of whether the impact of his statements were understood by the panel, and with no detailed rationale provided as to how he was cleared. This demonstrates that even when an investigation takes place in the Party, it appears to be a whitewash.\textsuperscript{234}

In any case, in the event where action is taken by the Party, it is often the case that it is done without any transparency in the process. This is why it is unclear which of the many cases raised in the earlier sections, have been responded to, and which have not.

Furthermore, the evidence below suggests that where action is taken, it appears this is a response to satisfy media concerns. This is because there are a significant number of cases where suspended individuals were quietly let back into the Party without any apology, acknowledgement of the harm caused or any apparent training:

- A former mayor, Councillor Rosemary Carroll, who was suspended by the Conservatives for sharing a racist joke on Facebook was reinstated. Her re-admission allowed the Tories to gain control of Pendle Council in Lancashire by one seat.\textsuperscript{235} After an internal investigation prompted by the media outcry at the re-admission, the Party decided to take no action and chose not to challenge her reinstatement.\textsuperscript{236}
- Peter Lamb, who ran for the party in a 2017 council by-election in Harlow, was allowed to stand as council candidate after being suspended following a series of comments he made on social media about Muslims.\textsuperscript{237}
- Mick Murphy, who had been suspended after sharing a post mocking Muslim women wearing the burqa, has been reinstated as a councillor\textsuperscript{238}
- Channel 4 News was informed about Andrew Bowles’ suspension live on air, whilst Andrew Bowles was not even aware of his suspension,\textsuperscript{239} suggesting the purpose of the suspension was to placate the concern raised by the journalists. Councillor Andrew Bowles was readmitted to the party 13 days following his suspension and after a social media training course.\textsuperscript{240}
- 15 suspended councillors were quietly reinstated with their suspensions lifted with no indication as to whether they apologised, if they had any training or engagement with the victims of their racism. The party’s response was to state “that selective cases did not provide a complete picture of how complaints were dealt with”\textsuperscript{241}

There are likely to be many other such cases that have not reached the public domain.

These actions point to an institutional problem within the Party, where issues of Islamophobia are ignored until there is a media spotlight, at which point the minimum required to divert that spotlight is done – rather than any meaningful action that will resolve the issue.

5. Denial of Islamophobia

The scale of Islamophobia within the Conservative Party is explained in the other sections of the Appendix. Yet the Party and its representatives have consistently denied there is an issue of Islamophobia in the Party.

A selection of examples include:

- Party Chair Brandon Lewis MP disputed there was even issue of Islamophobia in the first place in May 2018\(^{242}\)
- Deputy Chairman James Cleverly did not agree with Baroness Warsi on the Islamophobia in the Party\(^{243}\)
- Home Secretary Sajid Javid MP denied the Party had a problem with Islamophobia because: “My name is Sajid Javid. I am the Home Secretary”\(^{244}\), instead launching an attack on the Muslim Council of Britain who shared the evidence in the public domain.
- MP Kemi Badenoch claimed calls for an investigation into Islamophobia have a “political motive”\(^{245}\)
- MP Henry Smith denies there is a problem of Islamophobia in the Party stating “I have never come across any of that in the Conservative Party”\(^{246}\)
- MP Nadhim Zahawi denied there was any evidence that the Party was institutionally racist\(^{247}\)
- MP Nicky Morgan said the Conservative party does not have an Islamophobia problem\(^{248}\)
- MP Owen Paterson denied there is a problem of Islamophobia in the Conservative Party\(^{249}\)
- MP Jacob Rees-Mogg and MP Tom Tugendhat appear to believe that the Party has dealt with Islamophobia well\(^{250}\)
- Conservative Party Mayoral Candidate for London Shaun Bailey denied there was Islamophobia in the Party noting “I’m a black man in the Tory Party and I don’t feel the racism”\(^{251}\)

It is unclear how the Party and its representatives can continue to deny the scale of Islamophobia in the Party.
